FITZMAURICE'S FLIGHT STORY

BOULDER DAM—A GOLCONDA OR A GOLD BRICK?

Rich Groups Exploit Its 'Trade Name.'

BY HARPER LEECH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Las Vegas, Nev., April 18.—(Special.)—The tenderfoot in search of Boulder dam finds that this is the nearest point a railroad ticket will reach, and on alighting finds that Boulder dam is a trade name, not a dam site. As a site for a dam Boulder dam, above this picturesque town, is out of the drilling disclosed that it was a long way to bed rock. Black cañon, lying farther south, is the place.

A Powerful Group.

Back of these organizations are great political forces and business interests. Both have grown great like the Ontario Hydro, the New York port authority, the Chicago sanitary district, and the United States reclamation service—such bodies are coming to wield an ever increasing power in the United States. The Boulder dam is a powerful bureaucracy of American with minor allies.

A Riot of Color.

It is spring, the brief gap between the cold and the merciless scorch of the summer sun. The life imprisoned within the armored, thorny, spoked and varnished plants bursts for a brief few days into blossoms fair and daisy, scented like the perfume of early. These hard, ugly, businesslike things, always fighting for life, love when they love, like hard boiled men.

A Thrilling Ride.

The red headed lad who carries on the piston navigation of the cañons left his money and his guns carelessly on the table of his shack aboard the floating dock. Presently he comes out of the cañon, using every drop of gas he can crowd into his motor as a buffer inch by inch the eddies and swirling channel.

Common Nationalists Make Flying Baron a Candidate

WASHINGTON, April 18.—(By the New York Times.)—Baron Gunther von Helldorf's popularity has been increased through his successful campaign for the presidency. The Nationalists are convinced that his triumph in the campaign material and have taken him in a prominent position in the list of winning candidates in the presidential elections on May 30.

$21,000,000 IN BONDS TO BUILD UP SOUTH PARKS

Islands, Recreation, and Soldiers' Field.

Bond issues totaling $21,000,000 for improvements in the south park system will be offered to the voters at the June judicial election, the board of commissioners decided yesterday. At the same time, the city was considering plans for again submitting to the people some of the bond propositions which were defeated in the primary.

$5,000,000 for Parks.

Another $5,000,000 will be asked for general park improvements, including the enlarging of the administration and recreation buildings and for the construction of concrete curbing in the roads in the parks. The third bond issue of $3,000,000 will finance the cost of completing Soldiers' field.

The temporary wooden seats at the north end will be replaced by concrete seats, and the exhibition walls under the stands will be finished.

A resolution was adopted authorizing General Superintendent George T. Donoghue to advertise for bids for the reconstruction of the Flins Axis building in Jackson park. This building will be used as the new industrial museum, when completed. The cost is expected to be approximately $5,000,000.

Those City Bond Issues.

The revised city bond issue program, as it goes on the June ballot, will include only the ten unfinished street widening projects, totaling $48,000,000, according to present indications, the new street and departmental improvements being deferred until November or next year.

A half hour of yesterday's city council meeting was devoted to a post-mortem discussion of blame for defeat of the $7,958,000 program at the primary. Mayor Thompson in a special message blamed the Chicago plan commission and the newspapers, which, he said, urged the addition of the new street projects and then opposed the entire list. Ald. John Clark (30th), chairman of the council finance committee, echoed the mayor's charge against the newspapers and civic organizations. Neither hinted at the thought that the negative result resulted from the people's lack of faith in the Thompson administration.

Ald. Clark announced that he is arranging a conference of representatives of the civic bodies the first of next week. The whole situation will be presented to them, he said, and their recommendations will be carried back to the finance committee.

Fire 400, Fabery Says.

Between 300 and 400 employees of the board of local improvements, paid out of the balances in old bond issues, should be fired immediately due to the defeat of the April program, President Michael J. Fabery informed the council in a letter. All of the remaining money is needed to pay for condemned property, he said, and must be conserved for that purpose.

JAPAN ORDERS 5,000 NEW TROOPS TO ENTER CHINA

TOKIO, April 18.—The government has decided to dispatch about 5,000 officers and men of the Kwantung division to Shantung on transports leaving Moji bay Saturday. The Japanese newspapers unanimously deplore the move, declaring another expedition is uncalled for.

THE NEXT TO BE CLEANED UP

Cop and 1 of 2 Gunmen Are Slain in Battle

Policeman Emil Shogren, 32 years old, 1146 West Marquette road, father of three small girls, was shot and killed in a gun battle at 39th street and Michigan boulevard late last night when Sergt. John Shortall's detective bureau squad attempted to question two Negroes.

The Negroes opened fire on Shogren and Sergt. Shortall as the latter approached them. Guns blazed on both sides for a moment, then Shogren fell with a bullet in his heart and the Negroes fled.

Identify Slain Negro.

Policeman Shogren was rushed to the Lakeside hospital, where he was pronounced dead. The dead Negro, left lying in the yard, was later identified by a railroad pass card in his pocket as Robert Nash of Orlando, Ill., and 2821 South State street. The wounded man identified himself at the Lakeside hospital as Joseph Copps, 32, of 3857 State street. Both men have prison records.

The shooting occurred just three-quarters of an hour after Policeman Shogren had left his family and reported for duty at the Stanton avenue station.

Open Fire on the Police.

"We're police officers," they said, and stepped out of the squad car. When they were within ten feet of the Negroes the latter opened fire. Shogren fell a moment later and the wounded Negro almost immediately after. It was some fifteen minutes later, while searching in the back yard where the other Negro had disappeared, that the latter opened fire from a second floor porch on the detectives, and was killed.

Policeman Shogren was said to have been one of the most popular and efficient policemen at the bureau, where he had been assigned for two years. He was an athlete and each year took part in the police field meet. Relatives pleaded to allow them to break the news gently to his young widow, Lilian. His little girls are Lillian, 5 years old; Jean, 4, and Elaine, who will be 2 next month.

Well Dressed Infant Left on Steps of "The Cradle"

Well dressed and wrapped in a lamb's wool blanket, a baby girl was found last night on the front steps of "The Cradle," a home for babies and convalescing mothers at 2035 Ridge avenue, Evanston. On its dress was pinned a note which read, "Born April 8, 1928." Physicians and nurses at the home said the child was an unusually strong and healthy baby.

BUS BOY ADMITS PASSING CAFE'S $6,800 TO PALS

Lieut. Louis Klatzko and a squad of detectives last night were watching a spot near North and Hoyne avenues, on the west side, for the two accomplices who earlier assisted Sone Veat, an Assyrian bus boy, in the robbery of $6,200 in cash and some $400 in checks from Henri's restaurant. Veat confessed to Deputy Commissioner of Police Thomas Wolfe, of the first district, that he passed the bag containing the money to the accomplices on the street, after the three had planned the robbery.

Veat was taken into custody after Mrs. Margaret Neuman of 1061 Rosemont avenue, cashier for the restaurant, told of the robbery at Clark and Washington streets, while they were on their way to a bank.

Birger Fails at Suicide as Gallows Looms

Benton, Ill., April 18.—(AP)—Charles Birger, gang leader, who leered at prospects of death on the gallows, made two attempts to end his life in the county jail in the last few days, John W. Smith, deputy United States marshal told the Associated Press tonight. Birger is scheduled to be hanged there tomorrow.

Birger tried to hang himself in his cell in Franklin county jail early this morning. The other was an effort to end his life by poison and failed because he swallowed too much of the poison.

Spring Is Again Delayed; Colder Forecast Today

Much colder and partly cloudy weather is predicted for the Chicago region today and tomorrow by the weather bureau. The temperature, which yesterday rose to a maximum of 68 at 1:30 p. m., last evening started to drop again. By 2 a. m. the mercury registered an unofficial 43.

IRISH FLYER TO RETURN FOR GERMAN PALS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LAKE ST. AGNES, Quebec, April 18.—"I wouldn't think of going to New York or Quebec City without the baron and Capt. Koehl. I'm only a messenger boy here to grab a prop and rush it to them so we can all make the hop from Greenly as soon as possible."

Twirling a cigarette in one nervous hand on a half emptied glass of champagne in the other, Maj. James E. Fitzmaurice, Irish member of the trans-Atlantic plane, Bremen, made his first speech when he arrived here today from the icebound island on which the plane landed last Friday, April 13. The jaunty Irishman seemed much more perturbed over the unfounded report that he was flying to New York without his German pals than he did over the prospect of taking off from hazardous Greenly for a perilous flight to New York.

"Make it very clear," he said impetuously, "that I'm sticking. Why, with luck we'll have a propeller here late Thursday or Friday. Then we'll fly it with other parts to Greenly. It won't take long then for us to get off from there."

Greeted with Cheers.

The grinning Irishman got his first taste of the nectar of adulation that awaits him in the United States and elsewhere when he dropped out of the skies to this little village of ice in Duke Schiller's rescue plane this afternoon.

A volley of huzzahs, making up in enthusiasm what they lacked in volume, went up when Schiller, who is rapidly gaining recognition as the premier air taxi driver of the ice-lands, was sighted above this small lake.

Everybody galloped pell-mell to the jouncing plane when it touched the ice. But Miss Herta Junkers, daughter of the designer of the marooned Bremen, was first. She simply outran the others across the ice.

The slushy ice gave way under the plane and the tall skid was slightly damaged. Grinning, with a cigarette tucked beneath his trick mustache, the Irishman was first out of the cockpit. The tall blonde fraulein grabbed his arm, seemingly helping him to the ground.

"Wunderbar! Wunderbar!" were her first words. Then she repeated in English: "Marvelous, Maj. Fitzmaurice."

Almost Bowled Over by Crowd.

Fitz seemed a little abashed as he stood beside Miss Junkers, who certainly looked the part of a daughter of the snows. For a minute they stood alone, silhouetted against the plane. But a mob of townfolk and newspaper men descended upon them quickly and almost bowled them over.

Abashed, the Irishman stammered his appreciation as he was led away to a two story frame building. Boyish and defiant, and only 5 feet 11 inches tall, he seemed to have difficulty keeping up with the long strides of Fraulein Junkers as she led the way to the Canadian Transcontinental Airways temporary offices on the second floor.

Fitz brightened considerably when a bottle of champagne was produced. He lifted his glass to Miss Junkers and said:

"It's nice to be here and it's nicer to have a real drink, especially when one is soon to be in New York."

He winked at newspapermen and added:

"Until a few days ago I thought the Irish were the most hospitable people in the world, but I guess I'll change my mind now."

First Pictures of Flyer; A Full Page of Them

The first pictures of Maj. James Fitzmaurice since his flight across the Atlantic in the Bremen are published on the back page of this paper.

[This dispatch was written by Maj. Fitzmaurice, on the backs of envelopes and any other scraps of paper he could obtain, in the light-house on Greenly island after the Bremen made her forced landing. It was filed at Chicago City, Que., on Tuesday, but was delayed in transmission and half of it lost entirely, with the result that Maj. Fitzmaurice, aided by a staff correspondent of the New York Times, writing at his dictation, was forced to duplicate the latter half from his notes and refile the whole yesterday (Wednesday) at Murray Bay. It is signed by him as Capt. Fitzmaurice because he has not yet had official notice of the promotion awarded to him after the flight.]

BY CAPT. J. C. FITZMAURICE.

(Copyright, 1928: In the United States, Canada, South America, and Cuba: By the New York Times Company; In Great Britain and Ireland: By the Irish Times.)

MURRAY BAY, Que., April 18.—Four years ago the idea of a trans-Atlantic flight from Ireland to the American continent appeared to me to be a feasible proposition with aircraft then available for such work.

The project received considerable serious study from the aircraft, engine, meteorological, and navigation points of view. Last year it was put to the test, when, accompanied by Capt. R. H. MacIntosh, on the Fokker monoplane Princess Xenia, I attempted the crossing. The flight was abandoned, owing to the impossible weather conditions encountered.

Flight Filled with Thrills.

The experience gained on this flight was of inestimable value, and helped considerably the success of the flight which my gallant German comrades, Capt. Herman Koehl and Baron Ehrenfried Gunther von Huenefeld, and myself have just accomplished.

Our flight was packed with thrills from beginning to end. The takeoff at Baldonnel was exciting, to say the least. Having traveled more than 1,200 yards along the runway, which was specially prepared for the flight, flying speed was not attained, principally owing to the fact that there was no helping wind.

Near Crash at Take-off.

At this point a stray sheep appeared about ten yards in front of the propeller. It was simply an awful moment. We felt we were struck bang up against serious disaster at the outset. Fortunately sufficient speed was attained to enable Koehl and myself to ease the machine off the ground. The sheep was cleared and we rose in the air just in time to prevent crashing into a large tree at the end of the runway.

Now we are speeding over the mist covered hills of Ireland toward the west coast of Galway. About half way across, the country is covered with a thick blanket of ground fog, above which the conical shaped tops of the mountains appear. It is a beautiful sight.

Soon we are over the ocean, speeding along the edge of the mountain coast toward St. John's Head light-house, at which, as we pass, we gaze longingly and wave a fond farewell.

From St. John's head to mid-Atlantic the very good progress is made. Very favorable conditions prevail. Nothing to worry us, beyond some isolated snow, sleet, and rainstorms of a local nature here and there. We manage to go around most of them.

Smoke bombs were dropped on to the water, the direction and approximate velocity of the wind obtained, and our course corrected when necessary.

Run Into Fog Bank.

We are now approaching the coast of Newfoundland and estimate we are now only about 400 miles from land, when directly in front of us and spreading as far as the eye can see to the north and south is the great, dreaded fog bank.

A strong southeasterly gale is also encountered and darkness is approaching as Old Sol, our faithful guide throughout the day, is slowly disappearing behind the fog.

An endeavor is made to climb over it to keep the great guiding beacon of the heavens in view as long as possible, as we know the compass is not very helpful owing to the great differences in magnetic variation over short distances on this difficult stretch of the journey. It is no good.

The fog merges into the low hanging, heavily charged clouds. We decide to go down through the fog and sleet, and at last, when about fifty feet from the surface, the raging billows of the ocean, lashed to fury, loom up beneath us.

We are now at the mercy of our compasses and instruments. A leak in the oil system is discovered, which does not add to our peace of mind. We are up against serious trouble. Fog, sleet, a howling gale, and a leak in the oil system just at the point where we desire favorable conditions.

Narrowly Escape Waves.

There is nothing to do but grind our teeth, grin, and forge on ahead into the west, hoping that terra firma will soon loom up in front.

Flying so close to the great, surging waves many great downward bumps are encountered which all but precipitate our sturdy little craft into the merciless sea.

It is now black night. It is too dangerous to remain too near the surface so we climb to 2,000 feet, 3,000, 4,000, 5,000, 6,000, where the cold is intense.

We are still in the fog and sleet. Not even the twinkling of a star can be seen in the firmament. We strain our eyes in the hope of discerning the rays of a friendly lighthouse which will give us the longed for information that we are at last over the land. Nothing appears.

Sight Polar Star.

We continue, watchful at the controls ever forging ahead into the west. We are becoming fatigued and at times drop off to sleep from sheer exhaustion for a fraction of a second, only to awake with a jerk to an appreciation of our position.

It is all so dreadfully monotonous. The very instruments are grinning and making faces at us as if to say how fruitless are our endeavors. At last our determination is rewarded. The thick fog disappears behind and overhead, in front. The dark blue sky appears studded with stars. The

WASHINGTON PLANS ROUSING WELCOME FOR BREMEN'S CREW

Washington, D. C., April 13.—(AP)—The German-Irish crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen will be given a rousing reception on its arrival in Washington after the five days of festivities in New York.

President Coolidge will greet the sailors at the White House and the German ambassador and the Irish minister will divide honors in entertaining them.

It is thought that the Bremen's crew will come by airplane from New York, Thursday, April 14. A squadron of army airplanes will escort their plane to Bolling field.

Awaiting the trans-Atlantic flyers at the field will be Secretary Kellogg of the state department, Secretary Davis of the war department, and other members of President Coolidge's cabinet, together with the German ambassador and the Irish minister and their staffs.

President Coolidge will receive them at the White House and entertain them at luncheon on Friday.

The night of their arrival they will be dinner guests of the German ambassador and the second night they will dine with the Irish minister.

A visit to the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National cemetery and a trip to the capitol to visit the senate and house of representatives will be made.

Great Bear and Pole star. The faithful guide of mariners for so many centuries, are immediately located, almost directly over our heads, slightly to the right rear.

We have a great sign of relief and plan our course on the stars, continuing to the west for two more weary hours.

Suddenly, upon looking below, I feel that what we so far presumed to be broken patches of low lying fog over the waves, is really a snow covered forest area.

Flares Reveal Wooded Hill.

The very light pistol is produced. A white flare is fired and the machine circles to make an observation. Our eyes are so tired that it is impossible to make out objects beneath from the height at which we are flying. We descend as low as possible, consistent with a reasonable margin of safety.

After firing the third white flare we observe a large wooded hill directly below us, practically covered with snow and at last we know we are over land! The dawn is due at any moment. We anxiously await its arrival. With the first streaks of dawn we can observe the country below much better and discern a huge expanse of uninhabited snow covered forest mountain country. Not a sign of life is evident.

After Course to Southeast.

We decide we are many miles inland over Labrador, so alter our course to the southeast, using the sun again as our guide.

At last we find a broad river with mountains on each side. The river is frozen and covered with snow. We fly down to the river about ten feet from the surface for about two hours but fail to pick out any recognizable land marks.

We are gravely concerned about our petrol supply and having tested all our tanks estimate we have sufficient fuel for a further three hours' flying.

Troubled by Mirages.

We continue on in a southeasterly direction forever searching the country below for some sign of life. Now we are troubled with mirages and imagine we can observe in front of us large towns complete with church spires, domes, and cetera. And at other times, aerodromes, fully laid out with hangars and living accommodations and aeroplanes outside the hangars. The binoculars are produced and in each case our illusion is apparent.

We are now worried as to our fate should we be compelled through short age of fuel to land in this vast, uninhabited forest country. I try to imagine what Koehl and the baron are thinking of the situation. In my mind I make up every scrap of information I ever gathered from books I had read as a small group concerning the early pioneers in Canada and the Hudson bay trappers.

I had completed a scheme in my mind which, if we had been compelled to land would probably have brought us back to civilization again, some time in the future; how long I do not know.

Finally Sight Lighthouse.

Two more weary hours elapsed. We are searching for a suitable landing ground when we arrive at the edge of what appears to be a huge frozen lake. Charts are produced, discussions take place as to our actual position. We decide to search for some habitation or some sign of human life. The hope seems slight.

There is a huge blizzard approaching right in front of us. Suddenly it lifts and we observe in the distance the outline of what we think is a large ship frozen in the ice. The binoculars are produced again. We are convinced it is a ship and give a howl of joy. We fly towards it in the face of a heavy wind and are surprised to make out the outline of a stately lighthouse situated on a small island. The engine is throttled back. We glide down to investigate and after circling twice around the lighthouse, a pack of dogs is observed. No other sign of life is apparent. We think they may possibly be wolves and that the lighthouse is not occupied.

Koehl Out on Forehead.

The noise of the engine attracts the attention of the inhabitants and four persons emerge from the lighthouse building. It is impossible to describe our feelings upon observing them. We come into land after firing a smoke signal to obtain the correct direction of the wind. A perfect landing is effected on a patch of frozen water when, bang! the ice breaks and the machine tips forward on to its nose. Koehl receives a rather severe cut on the forehead. The baron and myself are uninjured. Little damage is done to the machine.

Upon slipping out of the cockpit we are surrounded by the inhabitants of the island, taken to the comfortable quarters of the lighthouse by the keeper, M. La Tamplour, where we are received with the greatest kindness and hospitality, a debt which we will find it difficult to repay.

As a result of our experiences upon approaching Newfoundland and over Labrador, coupled with discussions which we have held with seamen and traders of great experience in this particular district, we feel that we can account for at least part forward reasonable theories regarding the failures of previous flights of Nungesser and Goll, Minchin, and Hamilton, and Hinchliffe, the glorious unsuccessful attempts of those who were the real trail blazers to have flown before reaching Greenland island was offered to us by Varick Frisell, Yale graduate and a fellow of the Royal Geographical society, who has spent five years exploring the rockbound coast of Labrador and the country surrounding Greenland island. It is possible, Mr. Frisell said, the Bremen might have first reached Cape Bauld, at the northernmost tip of New foundland, down south to St. Anthony, which might have been mistaken for Fort aux Basques, the southeastern tip, and then across the straits of Belle Isle to Greenland island. The northern part of Newfoundland between Cape Bauld and St. Anthony, according to Mr. Frisell, is a vast wilderness and was probably the wooded country observed by the flyers, while the straits of Belle Isle, being only about 12 miles wide between St. Anthony and Greenland island, could have had the appearance of a large river.

Mr. Frisell described the shores of Labrador as the "most badly shattered coast in the world," with few light-houses. Wrecks have been common there, he said, since man first saw "the forbidding aspects of the coast." The British warship Raleigh, which sank in the Strait of Belle Isle in 1912, and the Hudson Bay company's steamship Bay Rupert, which ran on the rocks last July on the northern coast of Labrador, are the most recent.

SEEK AUTO VICTIM'S BROTHER.

The police yesterday were asked to notify Joseph Jackson, believed to live in Chicago, that his brother was killed in an automobile accident at Turlock, Cal.

GERMAN PILOT'S WIFE LEAVES TO EMBARK FOR U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, April 13.—Mrs. Hermann Koehl, wife of the pilot of the trans-Atlantic plane, Bremen, left by automobile for Bremen this morning with Baron Hans von Huenefeld, brother of the baron of the flight, preparatory to their departure for America. The former German crown prince was anxious to accompany them to Bremen, but gave up the idea because he feared it would be interpreted as a political demonstration.

GOLDING'S OF DRY AG STAY, SAYS

"The middle west of Chicago is in better shape ever in regard to enforcement of law," Dr. Doran, United States prohibition, said today, speaking the local dry convention.

"The forces of dry by George C. Golding, serve here," he added, is a permanent fixture, openly on interstate liquor.

Federal Judge William today imposed the making of six months' imprisonment for the first time on Alfred Parent, proprietor of a saloon in Wilmington, N. C., for selling liquor to high school girls on the north shore in passing sentence on a charge that the law did make the sentence.

FIRST PHOTOS OF FLIGHT OBTAINED AGAINST BIG ODDS

Pilot Guards Plane with Gun All Night.

(Chicago Tribune Staff Service.)
New York, April 18.—The first photographs of any of the Bremen airplane to reach the United States since the Junker monoplane landed on Long Island last Friday were brought to New York today by plane. They have Maj. James E. Fitzmaurice as their main subject and were taken at Great Neck, N. Y., where he flew with C. A. "Duke" Schiller en route to Murray Bay to arrange for spare parts to repair the Bremen.

Commandant Fitzmaurice is starting back to Greenly Island tomorrow, as advised by T. A. Smiddy, Irish Free state minister here, by long distance telephone today.

Brought by Tribune.
The photographs reached Long Island at 2:45 a. m. today in a biplane piloted by Lieut. Robert S. Fogg, one of the several planes chartered by radio news men, the New York News, and Pacific and Atlantic Photos, Inc., the Chicago Tribune's international picture gathering organization.

Two hours after the plane landed at Curtiss field, the P. & A. photographs were on the telephone wires, in the air mail, aboard fast trains and in the mail. Long Island sound and Great Lakes liners for all parts of the country. They were cabled to London and will appear tomorrow morning in the London Mirror and in American papers all the way to the Pacific coast.

At the same time, had prints traveling west, and its news reel pictures were shown in 300 theaters in New York City this afternoon.

Most Fogg was accompanied by Thomas Hogan, Pathé movie camera operator.

Guard Plane with Gun.
Fogg and Hogan, in telling their story of their trip and meeting with the daring Irish aviator, failed to relate the melodramatic moves made by the picture agencies to prevent the pictures from reaching New York far ahead of all competition.

When they arrived at Seven Islands Tuesday from Murray Bay they found all the gas in the hamlet bought up. They were forced to drive seven miles by day sled to get gas, and just got back to their ship five minutes before Maj. Fitzmaurice and Duke Schiller landed.

They had to keep an armed guard around their plane at Quebec to protect it.

In addition, Fogg and his mechanic stayed with the plane all night. Three days did not get past the guard, but Fogg's 45 caliber revolver kept them back from the ship.

On move to stop them proved a highway to the perpetrators. So much pressure was brought to bear on the Canadian customs officer at Quebec to hold the pictures on a technicality that he sat up most of the night to help Hogan get them cleared quickly.

GOLDING'S BAND OF DRY AGENTS STAY, SAYS DORAN

The middle west and particularly Chicago is in better shape today than ever in regard to enforcement of the prohibition laws," Dr. Joseph M. Doran, United States commissioner of prohibition, said yesterday while in Chicago on the local dry tour.

"The force of dry agents, headed by George E. Golding, will continue to serve here," he added. "This force is a permanent fixture, working principally on interstate liquor conspiracies."

Federal Judge William H. Hunt yesterday imposed the maximum penalty of six months imprisonment upon Vincent Parenti, proprietor of a roadhouse near Winnetka, charged with selling liquor to high school boys and girls on the north shore. Judge Hunt in passing sentence declared he was very sure that the law did not allow him to make the sentence greater.

OCEAN FLYERS ACCEPT BID TO VISIT CHICAGO

Council Starts Plans for Reception.

A visit to Chicago by the German-Italian crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen was virtually assured yesterday by telegram received here from Capt. Herman Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld. The messages were radioed from Greenly Island to St. John's, N. F.

Capt. Koehl's wire, sent to Mayor Thompson in response to an official invitation, said: "We hope to be able to visit your city soon in response to your kind invitation. Please convey to those citizens of Chicago who have sent us numerous telegrams our appreciation of their kind good wishes and our regret that owing to the great increase of business at the local telegraph office we are not in a position to express our thanks to each, individually."

Plate Hears from Baron.
Ludwig Plate, head of the North German Lloyd in the west, received the telegram from Baron von Huenefeld, whom he and Mrs. Plate entertained in their home on his visit to Chicago in 1925. The wire said: "Many thanks for your message and a thousand greetings to you and Mrs. Plate and the Lloyd. Hope to see you in Chicago very soon."

Three resolutions, urging the flyers to come here and providing for a big reception, were introduced at a meeting of the city council yesterday. The official one, that of Ald. A. J. Horan (24th), provided for appointment of seven aldermen by the mayor to act as a welcoming committee. The aldermen will probably arrange to meet the flyers in New York or Washington, D. C.

Fourth resolution, presented by Ald. John Toman (23d), requested the

Ends 3 Years' Work

Three years' work on the outer structure of the new chapel at the University of Chicago, for which John D. Rockefeller made a gift of $1,700,000 in 1910, was completed yesterday when Harold A. Baugh, architect's superintendent, completed the last capstone into place on the top of the tower, 210 feet above the ground. The building has been called one of the finest pieces of Gothic architecture in America. The interior will be decorated after it is completed next October.

Association of Commerce to raise a fund for purchase of trophies to be given the visitors on their arrival.

Tentative plans previously had been made by Germans clubs of the city and other organizations for the reception ceremonies. They include a welcome at the municipal airport, Clero avenue and 63d street, a parade to and through the loop, a second reception in the afternoon at the Art Institute and a banquet in the evening.

MAYOR'S OFFICE GIVEN TO 'DRAFT COOLIDGE' FORCE

Mayor Thompson's office in the city hall, unoccupied since the mayor moved into the Hotel Sherman shortly after his election a year ago, was put to use yesterday. It was designated as the headquarters of the enterprise of drafting Mr. Coolidge for a third term.

The "Draft Coolidge" headquarters formerly were in the Sherman, where Eugene F. Pike, generalissimo of the campaign, undeterred by the outcome of the primary, has continued to direct the mailing of "Draft Coolidge" literature.

BLEASE SCORES U. S. MEDDLING IN PRIVATE AFFAIRS

Tells Senate Snoopers Leads to Anarchy.

(Chicago Tribune Staff Service.)
Washington, D. C., April 18.—(Special.)—Senator Cole Blaise (Dem., S. C.) today subjected his colleagues in the senate to a blistering attack for their support of prohibition and other sumptuary legislation.

Rising to oppose the migratory bird bill, which later was approved without a record vote, he delivered a tirade against federal meddling in the personal habits of the individual.

"Weary of Dictation."
"The federal government is trying to dictate every detail of our lives," the senator said, "and I warn you senators that the people are growing tired of it. They are weary of having the senate and the house tell them what they shall do during every hour of the day; they are tired of having federal officers tell them what they shall eat and what they shall drink, where they can fish and when they can play."

"We are forcing people into lawlessness and anarchy as fast as we can. The people are tired of being hamstrung at every turn and dictated to in every contemptible way that can be thought of to destroy their happiness. They are tired of having snoopers watching their every action."

Senator Blaise asserted that the people have lost much of their respect for senators, representatives, judges, and other federal officials.

Juries Refuse to Convict.
"Juries in many cases refuse to convict defendants of violation of the liquor law when they know the man on trial is guilty," he said.

"The reason for this is that the jurors know that the judge before whom the case is being tried, and most of the other men in the community, are doing the same thing for

700, IMPRISONED ON ICEBOUND ISLE, FEAR FLU AND STARVATION

Ashland, Wis., April 18.—(AP)—Cut off from the mainland by ice floes, 700 inhabitants on Madeline Island in Lake Superior tonight were living on meager rations and caring for 20 cases of influenza in need of medical attention.

The inhabitants are living on canned goods facing the possibility that the supply would be exhausted before succor could reach them from the mainland. It is six miles from the island, famous as a summer resort to Bayfield, at the northernmost extremity of Wisconsin.

A government packet failed to reach the island today when sent out by the United States customs officer, Guy Burnham, but another attempt was to be made, he said. The plight of the villagers was given over a telephone line to Ashland.

which the defendant is being tried."

He scored prohibition snoopers and federal agents who entrap men into breaking the law.

"You have made a bunch of sneaks, snoopers and law breakers out of our people by trying to run our affairs," he said. "Why, a man who would take a drink offered to him at a senator's house and then go out and equal should be shot like a mad dog."

KIDNAPERS' RAIDS ON PRIMARY DAY BARED BY VICTIM

Tells of Headquarters in Twentieth Ward.

Evidence was presented to the board of election commissioners yesterday that a gang of kidnapers on primary day had headquarters in a building in the neighborhood of 14th and Sangamon streets in the Twentieth ward, where at least eighteen victims from several west side wards were man-handled.

A detailed story of the treatment accorded to prisoners was told by Earl B. Kribben, a watcher for the City club of Chicago, who was kidnaped from a polling place at 2353 West Roosevelt road in the 26th precinct of the 14th ward. The club offered a reward of $1,000 for evidence concerning Kribben's kidnaping.

Urban A. Lavery, attorney for the election board, called the attention of the commissioners to a series of other kidnapings which took place, he remarked, "seemingly as a concerted and organized scheme." All the victims were taken to the building near 14th and Sangamon streets.

Report on Kidnapings.
"The situation is regarded as more serious in some respects than any other similar situation in the recent experience of this board," Mr. Lavery declared. His report of the kidnapings follows:

"1. Twenty-fifth precinct of the Twenty-fourth ward, 3607 West 16th street. At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon four or five men boldly entered this polling place, carrying guns, and forcibly kidnaped three watchers, including Arvid Tanner, a member of the Chicago Bar association. The three men were taken to a vacant apartment in the neighborhood of 14th and Sangamon streets, where they were kept confined in a building, along with about eight other white men and seven or eight Negroes, until all were released about 8 o'clock.

Poll Watcher Released.
"2. First precinct of the Twenty-fourth ward, 1949 West Polk street. C. Ray Hansen, a lawyer and watcher for the Chicago Bar association, together with another watcher by the name of Sampson, was kidnaped and taken to the same apartment. Hansen was severely and seriously beaten.

"3. Thirty-first precinct of the Twenty-fourth ward, 3653 West 15th street. Joseph J. Thompson, who was a watcher in this precinct, was kidnaped about noon and finally taken to the same apartment. As he was being transferred from one machine to another he saw, sitting in a machine nearby, a leading lawyer politician, whose name can be given."

Tells of Experience.
Kribben, the City club watcher, declared he was kidnaped only 35 minutes after the polls opened at 6 o'clock. Six men grabbed him, struck him in the face, and rushed him to an automobile.
"We drove north to the 3400 block on Roosevelt road," his report read. "I was taken out and pushed into a vacant flat on the second floor, the window of which bore the sign of a Master Butcher's association. After being searched for half an hour or so by one or two armed guards [who told me that 75 strong arm squads of six men each were operating], the gang returned and I was put into a Ford sedan with six men, all armed, and two with sawed off shotguns.
"We drove around the Polk, Harrison, and Maxwell street districts and finally stopped at about 14th street and Sangamon, where the car drove up an alley and I was taken into the back door of a flat building. I was surrounded some more and thrown into a little room with four Negroes, two of whom had their skulls cracked."

Kribben told of others being brought in during the day, until eighteen or nineteen were crowded into the building. All the victims had been struck with revolver bullets and two of the Negroes were unconscious from their wounds, he said.

POLL OFFICIALS CALLED BEFORE ELECTION BOARD

Many Tally Sheets Seem Irregular.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The judges and clerks of election from nine different precincts were ordered in yesterday afternoon by the board of election commissioners to explain discrepancies in the returns. The defective returns and the situations about which they will be questioned are:

Second ward, precinct 22, Judge Gentzel was credited with receiving 59 more votes than were cast. Total vote was 208 and Gentzel was set down for 367.
Second ward, precinct 49, figures and tallies of votes for Municipal judges were so widely at variance no one could even guess the facts. Similar discrepancies arose in the First ward, precinct 1, and the Third ward, precinct 18.
Fourth ward, precinct 12, tallies were in such bad shape that they could not be counted.
Fifth ward, precinct 52, no returns on the ward committee contest.
Fifth ward, precinct 44, no return on board of assessors.
Sixth ward, precinct 57, returns for Municipal court judges could not be deciphered. The same condition existed in the Tenth ward, precincts 13 and 16. The board decided to accept tallies in the 8th precinct of the Fifth ward, where for some candidates the votes assigned in tallies was from one-fourth to one-eighth of the votes assigned in the figures reported to the board. To illustrate, Jaranowski was given 24 votes in tallies, while in figures he was credited with 111 votes. Neither the Demers-Gwanson nor the Crowe-Thompson lawyers and watchers, however, asked that those judges and clerks be called on to explain to the board.

COURT DISMISSES HEIRS' SUIT OVER STREETERVILLE

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday terminated the 21 year legal battle for equator's title to the land known as Streeterville by dismissing the appeal of heirs of the late Capt. George Wellington Streeter. Title to the land and improvements valued at $500,000, remains in the Chicago Title and Trust company.
Attorney Everett Guy Ballard, counsel for the appellants, announced that no further effort would be made to obtain title to the land.
Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley ruled against the heirs in 1926 and it was on appeal from this ruling that the higher court was called upon to decide. Dismissal of the suit was based upon a technicality, failure to perfect the appeal within the statutory time of three months.

GRANADY QUIZ DELAYED; HUNT MORE WITNESSES

5 Days' Testimony Fails to Clear Up Crime.

CRIMINAL COURT.
George West, forgery, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Stanley Kretschmer.
Charles Kofsky, house, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Albert Brown, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the Penitentiary; by Judge Stanley D. Comerford.

After taking for five days a mass of conflicting testimony which failed to establish a case against any individual, a coroner's jury investigating the murder on primary day of Octavius C. Granady, colored Deneen candidate for committeeman of the 29th ward against Morris Eller, yesterday announced a recess to April 27.
Attorney Charles Center Case, who with Attorney Francis X. Busch, represented the Chicago Bar association at the hearing, asked for the recess to permit of a search for further eye-witnesses.

A recital of sluggings, of several shootings, in addition to the killing of Granady, and of innumerable intimidations of Deneen voters throughout the ward on election day, was told the jury by Ernest Cross, colored, 1149

Washburn avenue, campaign manager for Granady.

Tells of Two Autos.
But only once in Cross' story was Mr. Busch, apparently, hopeful of nailing down a bit of tangible information. Cross had told of seeing a large touring car bearing a license issued to Abie Klass, 1515 West 14th street, former chauffeur of Eller, touring about the ward.

Later Cross described similarly one of the four cars containing the gunmen who killed Granady.
"Was it the same car?" demanded Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse.
"No," finally replied Cross, after some hesitation. "I'm sure it wasn't."

Fears for His Life.
Cross frankly admitted he had his own fears as to who did the shooting, as frankly stating that he feared for the lives of himself and his family if he revealed his opinion.

He said he remained at his home most of the day receiving reports of the violence throughout the ward from his workers.
"Each time I telephoned the election commissioners' office for help, but didn't go out to see if the help was sent," he said.

"Why didn't you call the police?" asked Mr. Busch.
Cross grinned broadly.
"Well, I tried for nearly an hour to get Deputy Commissioner Martin Mullen on the telephone, but finally gave it up," he answered.
Cross said he tried to dissuade Granady from exposing himself to the gunmen in the streets, but that Granady declared "They'll all think we're cowards if we hide."

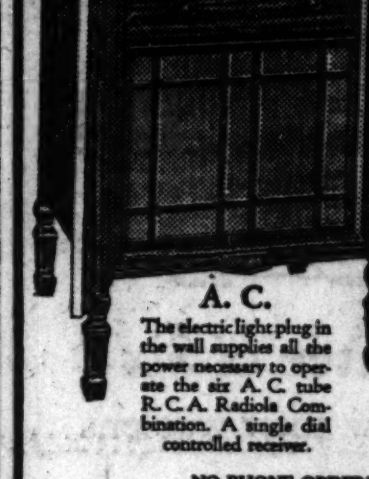

"A little later I was in a tea store at Washburn avenue and Thirtieth street and heard shooting," said Cross. "Somebody ran in and said Granady had been killed."

"Then I saw four automobiles speeding on Thirtieth street, a large blue sedan, a large touring car, and two smaller cars. Shots were coming from all the cars. From one car the muzzle of a shotgun or a machine gun was sticking out."

He could make out the occupants of the cars were white, he said, but could not see them clearly enough to identify them.

BULGAR CAPITAL IS ROCKED BY VIOLENT QUAKE

Natives Stay Outdoors; Fear New Shocks.

BY LARRY RUE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 18.—An earthquake of severe intensity shook the territory between here and Philippopolis, 100 miles to the southeast, at 9:30 tonight. While considerable damage occurred here, causing a panic among the citizens, Philippopolis was hardest hit.

Many large buildings are known to have been destroyed there and several fires started. Damage at Tschirpan would have been greater had it not been for the fact that about 2,000 buildings were destroyed there by last week's quake. Five houses left standing crumbled tonight. So far as is known, no deaths were caused by the new quake. An airplane rushing relief to the homeless was reported to have crashed, killing its three occupants.

Inhabitants Panic Stricken. According to dispatches from Philippopolis, inhabitants are panic stricken and are remaining out of doors, fearing that the slight shocks which continue to occur will destroy their houses over their heads. It was reported that the electric plant was put out of commission and that loss of life, injuries, and property damage cannot be estimated because of the darkness.

In Sofia, most of the town's population is spending the night on the streets rather than risk death inside the houses in event another shock brings down the already weakened walls.

From Haskovo come reports of widespread damage but no details are given.

Shock Is Widespread. Both Bucharest, 200 miles northwest, and Budapest, 400 miles to the northwest, reported severe shocks at the same moment Sofia was stricken.

Topographical changes already have resulted from the series of earthquakes in South Bulgaria last week. The population of thirteen villages, including Tschirpan, which is in the center of the district, is living in tents. Their homes were destroyed.

Numerous hills have entirely disappeared and new hills formed, and more than 100 new cold springs and many hot springs are spouting sulphurous water, mixed with mud. Numerous vineyards have been opened. One fissure is more than 40 inches across. At Tschirpan, 2,000 houses were destroyed, and at Borissavgrad 1,000 houses crumbled.

BLAINE OFFERS BILL TO BRING MARINES OUT OF NICARAGUA

Washington, D. C., April 18.—(Special.)—Curtilage of the powers of the President in the use of marine forces for the protection of American lives and property abroad is the object of an amendment to the 264 million dollar naval appropriations bill introduced by Senator Blaine (Rep., Wis.) today.

The amendment provides that all marines must be withdrawn from Nicaragua before Christmas. The amendment states "after Dec. 25, 1928, no appropriation made in this act should be used to pay expenses incurred in connection with acts of hostility against friendly foreign nations, or any belligerent intervention in the affairs of a foreign nation unless war has been declared by congress or a state of war exists."

Senator Blaine attacked the administration policy in Nicaragua and said that if his amendment passed a President who violated it would be subject not only to impeachment but also to prosecution under the criminal laws.

Wrecking of Old Briggs House to Start Today

Wrecking of the historic old Briggs house at Randolph and Wells streets, to make way for the new 11-story building of the Steuben club will be started this morning, it was announced yesterday after the papers for the financing of the new structure had been completed. A loan of $4,100,000, involved in the deal, was made through Halsey, Stuart & Co., with the Union Trust company as trustees. The Steuben club is an organization of Americans of German descent, with 500 members.

CERMAK TO ASK 15 DAYS' GRACE FOR TAXPAYERS

Opposes Harding Plan to Start Penalty May 1.

President Cermark directed the assessors and joint committee on real estate valuations to appear at the board meeting Monday with plans for printing assessments with names and street numbers.

Advisors to Be Named. The county board head also announced that next week he will appoint a committee of prominent business men, not in politics, who will act as an advisory budget bureau for the 412 taxing bodies in Cook county.

"With each of these political subdivisions acting independently in levying taxes totaling $200,000,000 a year, there is a dire need for coordination," he said. "There must be a more equitable division of the revenues and distribution of the burden."

"Businesslike methods in this big business of the county government, can cut expenses by eliminating duplicated offices. My proposal is similar to the budget bureau at Washington, which has proved very efficient."

Publish Before Election.

President Cermark made this announcement following a special session of the county board where news for the taxpayers developed. It was indicated that real estate assessments will probably be published before the November elections where voters can effectively register their protest against any favoritism that the publication will disclose. ## BENCH WARRANTS OUT FOR BROKERS IN SWINDLE CASE

Bench warrants for Manny Tager, Nathan Edelstein, and Irving Edelson, officials of Tager & Co., investment brokers at 307 South La Salle street, were issued yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti in the South Clark street court, when the three failed to appear in court on charges they had swindled a client out of $2,370.

When six lawyers appeared representing some ten or twelve other clients, who charged they had been collectively swindled out of approximately $100,000, Judge Allegretti forfeited the $5,000 bonds each posted by the officials on the first charge.

KILLED BY GAS WHILE GETTING MEAL. Mrs. Selma Trantach, 64, of 6811 Meadow lane, was found dead yesterday in the kitchen of her home, apparently overcome by gas while preparing a meal. Her son, George, called a policeman, who tried in vain to revive her.

With the big increase in taxes, due to heavy demands of our state and city administrations, it is too much to require the public to pay its bills on such short notice," said President Cermark. "The late County Treasurer Patrick J. Carr extended the deadline for payments when such an emergency as the present arose during his administration and there is no reason for Mr. Harding to take the stand that he does."

KITCHEN CABINET RACKET BLAMED ON 14 PAINTERS

U.S. Charges Plot Against Indiana Makers.

Fourteen officials and business agents of the Chicago district council of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers were named yesterday in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury charging racketeering in "built-in" kitchen cabinets.

The defendants are accused of conspiring for restraint of trade against the Indiana manufacturers. Those named are Coppes Brothers & Zook of Naperville, Hoosier Manufacturing company of New Castle, McDougall company of Frankfort, G. I. Sellers & company of Elwood, Wasmuth-Bendick company of Anderson. The indictment is drawn under the Sherman anti-trust law.

Who Defendants Are.
The defendants are: Arthur W. Wallace, secretary treasurer of the council; Frank L. Axelson, Joseph Casey, George W. Cummings, Stephen J. Dempsey, Albert Green, Charles W. Hanson, Wingo E. Hertz, Harry Luebke, Joseph C. Moenich, George H. Myers, Timothy Rios, Roy Shields, and George J. Tuckrower. The thirteen are business agents of the various locals of the council.

Wallace was named president of the Chicago Building Trades council during the labor upheaval following the Locals award decision. He was accused in the state courts on a charge of malicious mischief. Shields and Green have been named in connection with various shooting affairs.

Charges Extortion System.
The indictment alleges that in furtherance of the conspiracy the defendants demanded that the kitchen cabinets be sold, shipped and delivered in Chicago and vicinity with only a single coat of paint on them, saving that demand by calling strikes at threatening to call strikes of union painters and glaziers working in buildings where the cabinets were being installed. Threats, intimidation, and coercion caused buyers to cancel many orders previously given to makers, the indictment charges.

Finally, it is alleged, that when the Wasmuth-Bendick company did not accede to the demands of the accused men, as to the single coat of paint, the company was fined $1 per kitchen cabinet sold for installation in Chicago buildings. Others are said to have been the object of like demands. The money also for extra painting and to call off strikes.

The indictment alleges that an inferior grade of paint was put on the cabinets by members of the painters' union and that additional costs, due to the conspiracy, were passed on to the building owners.

Woman Obtains Indictment.
The indictment was returned yesterday before Federal Judge William E. Hall and was obtained by Miss Mary G. Connor, special assistant to the United States attorney general, who is in charge of the local prosecuting office seeking to break up racketeering.

Bond for Wallace was set at $5,000 and the bonds of the others set at $1,000 each.

Members of the Candy Jobbers' association were named in indictments previously returned.

DEATH OF NAUETTA BREWER.
Nauetta Brewer, 30, of 1554 Augusta street, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday and was buried Tuesday when her body was entombed with naphtha, accidentally.

Gambling Salon Operates Wide Open Near City Hall

Within a stone's throw of the city hall an elaborate gambling house has been operating wide open, under the supervision of five chieftains of the Cook County Wage Earners' league, since the election of Mayor Thompson a year ago, it was learned last night.

The gambling palace is located on the second floor at 186 West Washington street, in the Federation building, which until recently housed several local trade unions. Shortly after Mayor Thompson was elected the windows of the entire second floor of the old labor building were painted a deep green color, while the interior was fitted with all kinds of gambling devices.

Murder Climaxes Shootings.
There have been several shooting matches in the Wage Earners' gambling palace, but the most serious resulted in the murder on Feb. 26 of Robert J. Rutachaw, 30, of 5245 South Florida street, business agent of the "Upshoters" union. Police found the walls spattered with blood and potted with bullet holes.

The Cook County Wage Earners' league was founded four years ago by the late William Quess, also founder of the Flat Janitors' union. Of recent months the activities of the league have largely been directed by William Rooney, business agent of the Sheet Metal Workers' union, and Jerry Horan, an ex-bartender, who now occupies the position as head of the Flat Janitors' union.

These two men are said to have an interest in the Federation building gambling palace along with a prominent building trades officer, a butcher and a city hall official.

Pass on Candidates.
Before each election Messrs. Rooney and Horan and a number of others sit as presiding officers in a kangaroo court. All candidates for political office are called before the tribunal and inquiry is made as to the candidate's attitude toward labor.

Candidates for the judiciary must also pass in review. If they answer Messrs. Rooney's and Horan's questions satisfactorily, the O. K. is placed behind their name by James Jacob, an ex-policeman, who is adept in handling a pen. After leaving the police department Mr. Jacob became a yeoman for William Quess.

In the recent primary all the league's candidates lost by 200,000 and 300,000 majorities and now the chief concern of the league's officialdom is to pick a winner in the state's attorney race.

DEFENSE BALKED AGAIN IN CURRIE'S SUIT FOR LIBEL

Attempt to Show General a Coward Fails.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
COBURG, Ont., April 10.—In a tumultuous session today in the court trying Sir Arthur Currie's $50,000 libel suit against W. T. R. Preston and J. H. Wilson of the Port Hope Guild, Sir Arthur Currie was again the firebrand. When he attempted to testify, after being ordered to leave the witness box yesterday, he was forcibly escorted from the court.

Currie's defense, pin cowardice charges against his namesake, Sir Arthur Currie, was only the first of a series of reverses for the defense. Preston's counsel, Frank Regan, succeeded in recording the opinions of three witnesses that Currie's action in taking Mons in the closing hour of the war was unjustifiable. But all three witnesses were private or noncommissioned officers.

Experts Are Barred.
When Regan announced that he proposed to call experts to give their opinion, Justice Rode announced that the defense had already used up its quota of "experts."

Regan completed his. He might as well throw Sir Arthur Currie's examination for discovery in the ash can, he said, if he could not produce experts to contradict the answers to the 170 questions therein contained. His complaint brought a scathing rebuke from the bench.

Most effective of the testimony introduced for the defense today was that given by Maj. William M. Nickle of Kingston, who was private secretary to Gen. Sir Richard Turner, head of the Canadian forces in England late in the war.

Currie Is Warned.
Nickle declared that he had received word from the British general staff on Nov. 9 that the armistice was ready to be signed at any time. He was asked to communicate this to his chief with a view to having him discontinue troop and supply movements in France. The same word, the witness admitted, must have reached Sir Arthur Currie, yet it was after this that the Mons offensive was launched.

Nickle declared that word of slaughter at Mons had inspired a cable from Currie. Two weeks after the armistice, he said, Gen. Newburn, then minister of defense, had called Sir Edward Kemp, then high commissioner in London, asking for an investigation. He stated that the final cause was creating warm criticism in Canada.

AN ENGLISHMAN.
Currie declared that he had received word from the British general staff on Nov. 9 that the armistice was ready to be signed at any time. He was asked to communicate this to his chief with a view to having him discontinue troop and supply movements in France. The same word, the witness admitted, must have reached Sir Arthur Currie, yet it was after this that the Mons offensive was launched.

LAUGHING STOCK.
April 14.—Editorials similar to today concerning London and America first as the laugh of the world. Yours for the nation.

A DEMOCRAT COMPLAINS.
April 14.—The papers tell the story of charges made by a certain that huge sums of money went into Iowa to promote the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith. The charges are a monstrous lie of the stuff fund distributed in Iowa in the interest of the campaign.

PERSON FOR GOVERNOR.
April 13.—Congratulate the good work you have just done. Now if you could only help the election of Justice Thompson, it is doing another great service. What if he is a Democrat? There are many more who are capable of expressing an opinion, and who would do so in a follow party line.

AGAINST HOOVER.
Cal., April 12.—Why all this talk about the south wanting Hoover? He is a reason. Two plum trees and ripe for the picking. He is allowed to dry up and into dust. They are the Hoover food control and the Hoover I do not want Hoover.

RELAY.
and get on with his speech. It is worse than his life.

Heirs of J. O. Armour Offer Plan to Clean Up His Debts

BY G. A. MATHER.

Plans for clearing up the $18,000,000 debt of the late J. O. Armour to Armour & Co., packers, were made known yesterday. The proposal, however, is contingent on whether the Sutter Basin company accept the recently suggested plan of reorganization.

Mr. Armour guaranteed the bonds of the Sutter Basin company, his 55,000 acre California reclamation project, and therefore they were a claim against his estate when interest was defaulted on Feb. 1. But the bulk of the estate consisted of stock of Armour & Co. and other securities pledged to secure his debt to Armour & Co.

Heirs Offer Compromise.
The plan to reorganize the Sutter Basin company was drafted in order to avoid litigation which would involve the Armour estate, the Sutter Basin company, and Armour & Co. as the result of Mr. Armour's tangled affairs. In effect, Mrs. Armour would agree to donate several million dollars to the Sutter Basin company and to surrender her stock in the present Sutter Basin company. In return, the bondholders would waive any claims against the Armour estate, Armour & Co., and Mrs. Armour, and Mrs. Mitchell.

Would Avoid Litigation.
Reports in La Salle street yesterday that Mrs. Armour and Mrs. Mitchell would sacrifice some $10,000,000 of their personal fortunes are erroneous. While the face value of Mr. Armour's pledged securities is considerably larger than his obligations, their value in liquidation would be much less and probably only sufficient to reimburse Armour & Co. In such event there would be no equity for his heirs, just as there is no equity in his Sutter Basin stock.

It is understood the collateral Mr. Armour pledged with the Armour company includes around 1,000,000 shares of class B stock and 700,000 shares of class A stock.

class A stock. While both have a par value of $25 a share, the class B stock yesterday around $10.50 and the class A around $15.50 in the market. It previously was reported the company had given an option to buy 600,000 shares of class B stock at $15.50 a share to Arthur W. Cullen in the event the present plans go through.

At yesterday's market prices for the class A stock and the class B stock offered to Mr. Cullen these securities would hold large blocks of the stock were thrown on the market. Probably the stock would be taken back into the company's treasury.

MRS. ARMOUR'S PURPOSE.
At her apartment on Sheridan road, Mrs. Armour talked last night of the financial arrangement, but refused to discuss the details. It was, she declared, the culmination of intentions formed by herself and her daughter, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, at the time of Mr. Armour's death.

"How could I have done anything else?" she asked. "It was my husband, and both Mrs. Mitchell and myself knew that it was what he would have wanted us to do. There never was at any time a question of anything else."

"Everyone who knew Mr. Armour appreciated what a humane man he was. He was very fond of people, and particularly, I may say, of poor people. Armour as security for his debt to Armour & Co. This would avoid any formal foreclosure and permit the Armour company either to sell the securities or retain them as assets."

SHOOTS WOMAN, TO DEATH AND KILLS HIMSELF.
Mrs. Mary Pustelmak, 40 years old, 5028 Archer avenue, was fatally shot in her store at that address yesterday afternoon by Tony Maghiska, also 40, of 329 West 23d place. Maghiska then turned the weapon on himself and fired a bullet into his brain, dying a few minutes later. Mrs. Pustelmak died.

late last night at the German Descon hospital.
According to Lieut. Ernest Payne of the Brighton Park police station, Tony met Mrs. Pustelmak about a year ago when she served coffee to some street repairs, including himself. Yesterday he entered her store and there was a quarrel. The shooting followed. The woman's husband, Michael, who works for the Crane company, could give the police little information.

The five children are Stella, 21; Stanley, 17; John, 15; Helen, 12; and Charles, 8.

FLAWS FOUND IN HALL-MILLS "CONFESSION"

N. J. Authorities Doubt Convict's Story.

El Reno, Okla., April 10.—[Special.]—The Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were killed by a man who is now a convict in the county jail here, according to the man's "confession," made today to W. P. Morrison, county prosecutor.

Elvin P. Allen, serving a term for forgery, said he fired the shots that killed the two. He said he was paid $5,000 by a "Connecticut dentist," who told him he was a relative of one of the murdered couple. Allen had two accomplices, a man and a woman, he said.

Authorities here, however, are inclined to disbelieve Allen's story after checking up with the New Jersey authorities. They consider it likely that Allen may have made the confession in order to be sent back to New Jersey and this belief is strengthened by the fact that Allen said he was willing to waive extradition.

Got $1,000 Down.
Allen said he was serving a term in the Connecticut state reformatory when he met the dentist. The dentist said that his wife was being held by the police and that he had been wounded. The dentist said he had been wounded. The dentist said he had been wounded.

COOLIDGE MUST RUN IN EVENT OF DEADLOCK—FESS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 10.—[Special.]—President Coolidge does not desire the presidential nomination, in the opinion of Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio, "keynote" of the Republican national convention, but if a genuine deadlock, not a manipulated deadlock, occurs at the Kansas City gathering in June, it will be the President's duty to accept, he believes.

The senator, chairman pro tempore of the Kansas City convention, was emphatic in his assurance that Mr. Coolidge is out of the race.

"I have thought all along that without a deadlock Mr. Coolidge is out of the race," he said. "But suppose there is a deadlock, a real deadlock, not a manipulated deadlock? The most natural thing would be for the convention to turn to Coolidge. Of course, I have no knowledge as to what the President would do in that situation. But I cannot see how any one would refuse to accept under such circumstances. It would be a matter of duty, not a question of choice."

PRIMARY VICTORS SIGHT DANGER IN HARMONY MOVES

Shy from Proposals of Small-Mayor Group.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Victors in the Republican state and county primary last week shied yesterday at what they described as the danger of too much harmony with their opponents in the big battle.

They protested when they were told that the Thompson-Crowe organization was willing to try to cast the entire Cook county vote in the state convention at Springfield tomorrow as a unit for the Lowden-Emmerson-Deneen program.

They said, would have the effect of presenting them to the public in a tableau of clasped hands and forgiving embraces with the combination of Gov. Len Small, Mayor Thompson and State's Attorney Crowe, a picture, they said, that would turn against them the great tide of public opinion that backed them last Tuesday and swing it over in support of the Democratic ticket in November.

Thompson Steps Aside.

The imminence of such a danger was pointed out by many observers following last Monday, when Mayor Thompson stepped aside, sanctioned the shelving of his "principles," and permitted the other leaders of his machine to put on a peace program that caught the Deneen leaders by surprise, and checked their plans for continued hostilities.

Postponement of all action on the county platform left them helpless, for all they had contemplated was a bitter fight to insert planks for law and order and for clean elections. But this failure to re-record their battle cry for the full election they expected to remedy by presenting it at the judicial convention on May 2.

This, they believed, would correct the impression that they were desirous of November peace with April enemies. Then came the new proposition that started the real roar.

Galpin Gives Cue to Move.

County Chairman Homer K. Galpin said newspaper men in answer to a question that he expected to act as chairman of the Cook county delegation at Springfield tomorrow. He indicated that he would be willing, as spokesman, to cast the entire vote of the county for the regular program. This willingness on his part to endorse the affairs of the convention and aid party harmony then was discussed with the opposition. Lowden leaders who look forward to a Lowden endorsement and possibly the adoption of the unit rule were not displeased with the news, but advisers of the state candidates, and particularly the Deneen leaders, opposed the suggestion emphatically.

"The roll of the rest of the state

BURNHAM McLEARY NEW SECRETARY OF CITY VOTERS' LEAGUE

Sigmund Zeller, president of the Municipal Voters' league for several years, has been reflected to that office by the league's board of directors, it was announced yesterday.

Burnham McLeary was elected secretary to replace Dr. N. S. Davis, who, in turn, was chosen vice president to succeed Mrs. H. N. Rose. Mrs. Rose resigned when moving to Oak Park.

New members of the executive committee are Mrs. James A. Field, Judge Charles M. Walker, Schuyler Thurber, and Rollin Larabee. Albert R. Bruner succeeded Robert B. Upham, resigned, as chairman of the league's finance committee.

Mr. McLeary, the new secretary, is account executive for H. W. Kastor & Sons Advertising company. He is a graduate of Harvard and during the war was associated with Dr. Edwin F. Gay, director of the Central Bureau of Planning and Statistics of the war industries board.

In a statement, issued yesterday, Mr. McLeary urged the citizens to support the league's endeavor to remedy "deplorable conditions in the city council" by electing better aldermen at next February's election.

is called by counties," said United States Senator Deneen, "but when Cook county is reached the wards are called and then the country towns, which the present law provides are to vote as a unit. We shall insist upon voting our own delegates."

That was the one official declaration for this camp, but several of its other leaders indicated that the move was an effort to kill off the issues which had won in the campaign and give the Thompson-Crowe organization control of the fall campaign. A pro-Small newspaper yesterday printed a story of a Small-Deneen entente, but no evidences of it could be found.

Lowden Stock Goes Up.

Clarence F. Buck returned from Washington and New York with a declaration that there has been a complete reversal of opinion there concerning Frank O. Lowden's chances for the presidential nomination. "It had been freely predicted," he said, "that Lowden would not have the support of his own state and therefore would not be a serious contender. Now since more than 1,000,000 people in Illinois have voted for him, all this is changed."

"This fact has been the principal topic in Washington the last week among members of congress, newspaper correspondents, and political dozers. They now say Lowden's Illinois victory, following the unmistakable and almost unanimous expression for Lowden from the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, and the Carolinas, makes him the outstanding Republican candidate."

"I called on some of the most important business men in New York and they without exception expressed the highest regard for Mr. Lowden's public record and known ability, and did not hesitate in saying that the business interests of the country would feel a concern over his nomination and election."

THREE ALDERMEN GET CHILLED IN PAY ROLL SEARCH

Try in Vain to See Copies;
Shakeup Looms.

Three members of the city council, with a grim and determined air, marched up to the office of Controller Charles C. Fitzmorris yesterday to obtain copies of the city's pay rolls. Newspaper talk about secret salary lists meant little to them. Were they not duly elected guardians of the people's money? Of course. Would they get what they wanted? Most assuredly.

Fifteen minutes later the aldermen marched down again—without the pay rolls.

"Mr. Fitzmorris was a little chilly," said Ald. E. I. Frankhauser (49th). "He told us we could have the pay roll, yes, when he gets ready to give it to us. It will take several days, maybe a week, for him to gather the data from the various departments. Then he'll have to get it in shape for us, you know. O, it might take two weeks."

Three Copies Prepared.

All of which is aside from the well known fact that three complete copies of each departmental pay roll are prepared each month. One is kept by the controller, one goes to the department, and the third to the municipal pension fund office. Sheets of the latter copy, piled in neat order, were seen in the pension office two days ago.

The three councilmen, Ald. Frankhauser, Ald. James Bowler (25th), and Ald. R. A. Woodhull (7th), are members of the subcommittee of the council finance committee, appointed to make an inquiry into the whole pay roll controversy which started six weeks ago when Corporation Counsel Ettelson refused to make public the names of his $50 and $100 a day experts and special attorneys.

During the week or so while Mr.

Fitzmorris is getting things in shape, it is understood, there will be a general pay roll shake up.

Four Hundred Face Dismissal.

In fact, President Michael J. Faherty of the board of local improvements, notified Mr. Ettelson yesterday that it will be necessary to drop about 400 experts and investigators paid out of bond issues. Defeat of the bond program at the primary, he said, was the reason. Insiders at the Hall, however, had it that the bond defeat will merely serve as a camouflage to let Mr. Ettelson and Mr. Faherty, whose pay rolls are intermingled, "out from under."

Further, it was said, the so-called bond issue dilemma affords an excellent excuse for letting out the boys who failed to deliver their precincts and wards at the primary. Those who failed to go out; those who delivered get better jobs.

Meanwhile, the council committee investigation marks time waiting on Mr. Fitzmorris, the pay rolls remain secret, and the taxpayers stay in the dark as to who pockets their money and why.

ORDERED DOGS KEPT IN LEASH.

Police Chief Jacob Rudolph of Glenview ordered all dogs kept inside or on leash when taken for an airing for the next 30 days in the suburb, after a dog died there yesterday of rabies.

STALIN LAUNCHES PLEA FOR RALLY TO SOVIET IDEALS

Fears Capitalistic 'Poison' in Economic Crisis.

BY WALTER DURANTY.
(Copyright 1928, by the New York Times.)
MOSCOW, April 18.—A speech by M. Stalin before the recent mixed plenary session of the central committee of the Communist party was published today.

M. Stalin, secretary general of the Communist party and dictator of Soviet Russia, discussed three topics—criticism, grain collections, and the "Shakhta" affair, or the "technical" question.

M. Stalin sweepingly describes the Shakhta affair as a "new foreign intervention." Military intervention of the period of 1918-20 failed, so that the hostility of foreign capitalists was, took the form of a "new economic intervention" through bourgeois technicians.

Grain Crisis "Treachery."
The grain collecting crisis in the last three months of 1927 was presented as an attempt by "Kulak speculators" to disrupt national economy and starve the urban proletariat and the Red army.

M. Stalin warned against leaders who lose contact with the masses, who ignore or stifle criticism, who fail to foresee difficulties. He emphasized the Kremlin's recent decision that all important Bolshevik executives must spend at least one month every year in local work in the provinces.

All this is taken to mean that the Kremlin has finally emerged from the fog of ideological discussion and is now facing the facts.

Peasant Biggest Problem.
The richer peasant opposition probably is due more to economic than political reasons, but it is among this section of the rural population that religious influence is the greatest, as M. Stalin remarks.

As matters stand today the Kremlin is committed to a vast program of industrialization, which is straining all the national resources. Even in the United States a year or more must elapse before a new factory can produce goods. Here it takes two or three years.

Peasants Hard Reality.
The Kremlin is now facing the following realities:

First—The peasants are still bearing the chief weight of industrialization.

Second—The peasants will not be benefited thereby much before 1931 or 1932.

Third—The program is so extensive that three good harvests running have sufficed only to keep it going without permitting a disaster.

The writer is convinced that more has been said in the accomplished than is generally believed abroad, but it is true that expenses have increased drastically by ignorance, red tape and misdirected energy—expenses far greater than the handful of disloyal technicians.

There are two obvious remedies—First, concessions to internal capitalism; and second, to capitalism without.

In the momentary panic, due to the

HOUSE OF COMMONS HALTS MOVE TO RAISE FLAPPER VOTING AGE

LONDON, April 18.—(AP)—Declaring that 99 per cent of young persons 21 years of age were not fit to vote, and that 99 1/2 per cent of them did not want to vote, Capt. Charles Craig, conservative, seconded in the house of commons today an amendment to the "flapper vote" bill which would raise the voting age from 21 to 25. The amendment was defeated, 359 to 16. The 16 favoring it were all conservatives.

Capt. Craig maintained that the government was making a great blunder, for there was no demand whatever for the bill. He agreed that men and women should be placed on the same basis, but contended that the age of 21 was too early to give the ballot to either.

The franchise bill is the parliament name for the "flapper vote" measure, and it now is in the committee stage in the commons.

Margaret Bondfield said the laborites would oppose the amendment, since they represented a class whose children began knocking about the world at 14, and by 21 had suffered unemployment and all the troubles of life just above poverty.

grain collecting crisis, there was talk of allowing individuals here to buy goods abroad through a specially constituted government department.

The Kremlin denounced this measure as a surrender to internal capitalism.

If M. Stalin's speech means anything, it means that both remedies have been rejected in favor of an attempt to renew the miracle of 1917—to reenergize the communists, and through the communists, the popular masses, into a final struggle for Socialist ideals.

STATES BALK AT GERMAN MOVE TO BAR "RED SHIRTS"

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BERLIN, April 18.—The cabinet of the ministry of the interior to form the communist semi-military formation, "Red Front Fighters," prohibited has exploded a bomb in the political situation, and is leading to a serious conflict between the federal government and the states.

Following Prussia's example, Hesse, Hamburg, Lubeck, Brunswick, and Mecklenburg have refused to obey the order. Saxony and Thuringia are expected to do the same. So far, not a single state has conformed, though Bavaria and Wurttemberg are expected to do so.

The Democrats point out the unfairness of prohibiting the communist organization, while allowing revolutionary monarchist formations to carry on.

The socialist vigorously opposes the move. They believe, if carried out, the decision will turn hundreds of thousands of votes from themselves to the communists.

Fortune Awaits Missing Girl, 11, Police Are Told

A fortune awaits 11 year old Elizabeth Hildegard Welsh. Her father was killed in France during the war. The Chicago police were asked to search for her yesterday. Daniel O'Neill McCullough of San Francisco, a cousin of her father, asked for aid when he learned she may be here. Welsh married a Mrs. May Peterson and lived in the vicinity of 424 street and Lake Park avenue.

NEW MOVE MADE FOR EUROPEAN CHEMICAL TRUST

Anglo-U. S. Interests May Fight Combine.

(Copyright 1928, by the New York Times.)

PARIS, April 18.—The European trust movement advanced another step today when the announcement was made of formation of a pharmaceutical cartel with the principal producers of France, Switzerland, and Germany as the first members. The agreement is tentative, but will be ratified in the near future.

Within a brief period the combine is expected to be enlarged to include other continental countries such as Italy and Belgium, thus establishing a powerful European unit for world sale of products involved.

Giant Chemical Trust.
The latest agreement is part of a general effort to combine all chemical and allied commodities of continental Europe, which last year bore initial fruit in a European chemical trust formed for the pooling of dye-stuff interests of France, Germany, Italy, and Switzerland.

The original scheme contemplated the entrance of Britain, but prolonged negotiations failed and present indications are that Britain will remain outside and later join with American chemical interests to meet the serious menace of the European chemical combination.

U. S.-Anglo Combine?
Some well informed observers see in the recently created finance company of Great Britain and America, with a capital of $250,000,000, the first effort of British and American chemical industries to get together for the purpose of combating the European trust. It is pointed out that the chairman of the new company, Sir Alfred Mond, is head of the largest chemical concern in the British empire—Imperial Chemical Industries—which has the most to fear from the European trust. The chemical plans of the new Anglo-American company are said to be only second in importance to its plans for Anglo-American rubber cooperation.

Murder Indictment Voted Against Red McLaughlin

A true bill charging murder was voted by the grand jury yesterday against Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, who was arrested in Wisconsin several weeks ago when he was shot by the mayor resisting arrest. The indictment will charge him with the murder on Sept. 9, 1926, of Joseph W. Kral, former president of the Checker Cab company.

Sunkist Oranges for quick desserts

Five-minute desserts and ten-minute salads are best made with California Sunkist Oranges because they are easiest to peel and separate, and, easiest to slice delightfully thin. Sunkist Oranges are firm and tender and give the most delightful results.

Sunkist Oranges are either seedless or practically so and offer no annoying task in the preparation as food. Not only time is saved, but the juicy, golden fruit is lusciously appetizing as you place it on the table.

Serve more California oranges for their joyous, inviting goodness, but most important, for their health building qualities. Oranges not only contain a wealth of vitamins and mineral salts, but are one of the most potent correctives and preventives of ACIDOSIS, known to Medical Science. Orange juice before breakfast, lunch and dinner will benefit you materially. Your doctor will confirm this statement if you will ask him.

All through the year, fresh luscious California Sunkist Oranges are obtainable everywhere fruit is sold. They are uniformly good; the Sunkist trade-mark assures that. There is a size for every pocketbook, but all are of true California Sunkist quality.

—Richest Juice
—Finest Flavor
To be sure of getting California Sunkist Oranges, look for the trade-mark on the wrapper.

WHEAT ADVANCES AFTER EARLY DIP; CORN ALSO GAINS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish enthusiasm which developed after the grain markets had shown an early undertone in the early trading yesterday carried prices up sharply with July wheat, July and September corn, May and July oats, and May rye selling at a new high on the crop. Sellers of wheat were forced to protect themselves on the way up, and many of the recent sellers reinstated their lines. The close was about top, with net gains of 2 1/2¢ on wheat, 2 1/2¢ on corn, 1 1/2¢ on oats, and 2 1/2¢ on rye.

Scattered selling and local pressure carried wheat prices off 10 1/2¢ in the early trading due to relative weakness in Liverpool, but the offerings were absorbed by strong commission houses and local professionals and prices advanced 4 1/2¢ to close. The inside figures, with top less orders uncovered on the way up. There was free selling of May by longs who replaced by purchases of July, while cash interests bought May and sold July. Minneapolis sold 100,000 No. 1 northern to cash here and Duluth sold a cargo, and the May went to a discount of around 10¢ under July at one time, against 10¢ over at the close on Tuesday.

Free Damage Southwest. News was more in favor of holders of wheat than for some time, with high winds prevailing in parts of Texas, Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado combined with dry weather and low temperatures. Fears of damage were expressed in many messages from the dry area, and the forecast held out no hope of moisture. There was also talk of delayed spring wheat seeding in the northwest, and also reports of reseeding being necessary as the result of 10 days' freezing and thawing. Late messages reported temperatures of as low as 6° above and growing colder, with rain or snow over a wide area.

Route developments attracted little attention, with Liverpool 14 1/2¢ lower. Buenos Aires after being easy 5 1/2¢ rallied with Chicago and closed 5 1/2¢ higher, and Rosario was 1 1/2¢ higher; Winnipeg gained 5 1/2¢.

New Interest in Corn. Outside trade in corn was the largest in some time, and shorts were stamped into covering. There also was heavy buying by commission houses and local operators, many of whom have been bullish but had little grain bought. Liquidation in May corn hit its course early, and July at one time went to a fractional premium over the September. Cash demand showed improvement, with June paying about $1.10 for cash grain in Kansas. Weather conditions were unfavorable for field work in the central west, with low temperatures in the southwest, and some damage may have been done.

Recent freezing weather apparently did considerable damage to the newly seeded oats crop, and the low weather report said the outlook in that state was the worst at the present time since 1921. Cash position was regarded as strong with a crop of 20% in No. 2 white selling at 70¢ on spot, or 5 1/2¢ over May, and the best figure since 1920. Trade in futures was active, and sellers of daily and weekly orders were forced to protect themselves. Trade in rye was moderate, with the strength in wheat bringing in good buying. Charters were made for 135,000 bu to Buffalo, and it was said another round lot was being figured on.

LARD MARKET EASY

Trading in lard was moderate and the close was at net losses of 5¢. Large supplies made a bullish trade, and the low weather report said the outlook in that state was the worst at the present time since 1921. Cash position was regarded as strong with a crop of 20% in No. 2 white selling at 70¢ on spot, or 5 1/2¢ over May, and the best figure since 1920. Trade in futures was active, and sellers of daily and weekly orders were forced to protect themselves. Trade in rye was moderate, with the strength in wheat bringing in good buying. Charters were made for 135,000 bu to Buffalo, and it was said another round lot was being figured on.

Meats were in fair request and ribs closed unchanged to 3 1/2¢ higher. Buttes were easy and 3 1/2¢ to 7 1/2¢ lower. May being the weakest. Reports of hams were 71,750 lbs. Cash trade was better.

Slaughtering in the west for the summer season is due to start about May 15, according to a dispatch from the west. The 1927 season was the best since 1921. The 1927 season was the best since 1921. The 1927 season was the best since 1921.

Three Generations

By WARWICK DEEPING

SYNOPSIS.

Old John Pybus, formerly a bootmaker in London and later in Winterbourne, is now a porter in an inn at Castle Craven, when his son Conrad sees him there has been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him.

INSTALLMENT V. A FAMILY COMPLICATION.

Mr. Conrad drove over to Windover.

Mr. John Pybus' presence at Castle Craven, within a morning's drive of both Windover hall and Chiois court, was a family complication, and Conrad was a cautious fellow.

Turning in at the lodge gates between two stone pillars capped with griffins, he saw before him the famous avenue of beeches arched like a great green tunnel. Always there was a soft, cool movement of air under the spreading boughs of the old trees. The gray trunks were spaced like the pillars of a temple, and the cool drift of the air between them made young Lance Pybus imagine that he was feeling the breath of the divine afflatus.

He was an imaginative lad; he had a temperament.

Mr. Conrad Pybus, proof against all such fancies, saw the redness of the Queen Anne house glowing at the end of the avenue. The old brickwork had the sun upon it, and the sashes of its windows were very white. Chiois Court was a bastion of Gothic conceived by some early Victorian, and though Conrad's house had a more dramatic exterior than his brother's, Conrad was a little envious of that old red brickwork. It was so mellow. It suggested that Probyn himself had mellowed more gracefully than had his younger brother. Yes, there was something Georgian about Probyn. He had developed a country manner, or what he conceived to be a country manner.

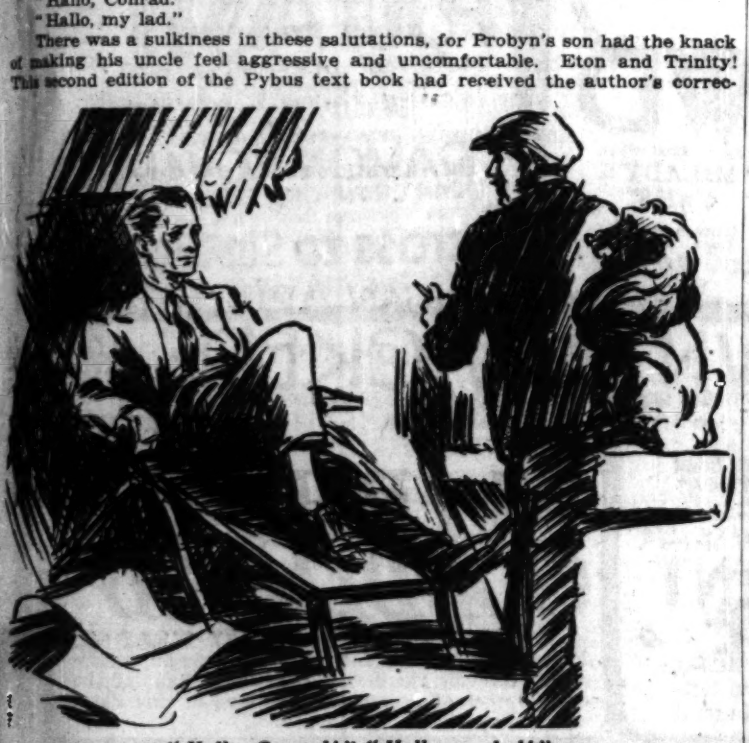

Conrad stopped his car on the gravel to the east of the yew hedge and the terrace. Through the square openings in the yew hedge he had glimpses of Probyn's lawn, and the flower borders, and the pleached lines of the Dutch garden. It was all very still, and slightly autumnal, with the dew yet upon it, and some of the old trees showing here and there a tinge of yellow. Conrad's broad nostrils seemed to narrow. Always it appeared to him that Probyn's head gardeners got better results than his man did at Chiois Court. Damn the fellow! Still, his dahlias were always better than Probyn's. Jealousy can include the most trivial of details.

You might be jealous of your brother, but you entered his house informally, and Conrad walked towards the terrace, but in the angle that the yew hedges made with the southeast corner of the house young Lance was reading Noel Coward's plays. He had tucked a deck chair into this sheltered corner. His flannel trousers were well up to his knees; his dark blue socks were the socks of a sewing man. He wore a white, blue edged Third Trinity blazer.

"Hallo, Conrad!"

"Hallo, my lad."

There was a sulksiness in these salutations, for Probyn's son had the knack of making his uncle feel aggressive and uncomfortable. Eton and Trinity! This second edition of the Pybus text book had received the author's correction.

"Hallo, Conrad!" "Hallo, my lad!"

It was a more complete and polished product. It could lounge in a chair, and glancing up casually, address its uncle as "Hallo, Conrad." Young Pybus resumed his reading, and his uncle walked on towards the French window of the library. He disliked his nephew, because Lance—even as a child—had been a creature of queer aloofness, the kind of boy who wished you and listened to you with a mysterious grave face, and remained seemingly silent. Lance's very looks were curiously disturbing to his uncle. There was something challenging in the eager, upward lift of the head. His dark hair gave the impression of being blown back. It was like the head of a youth running swiftly against the wind. His broad face, with its large and sensitive mouth and short nose, had a young man's reticence, a reticence that was obstinate. And there were those very blue eyes, either very bright and near or very distant. They were the eyes of that incorruptible old man—his grandfather.

Meanwhile Lance turned his head to watch his Uncle Conrad's progress along the terrace. Conrad turned his toes out; he had the walk of a man who would be very fat at five and fifty; his neck was too short; he had a greyness.

Yes, that was it, a suggestion of greyness, for if Lance was an offense to his uncle, Conrad was far more subtly displeasing to his brother's son. It was a question of temperament, of fiber, of vibrations. Lance might baffle the older man, but Conrad Pybus was no mystery to the nephew. It was as though those very blue eyes looked right through Mr. Conrad's thick and snappy skin and saw. Yes, what exactly did he see? Perhaps it was more feeling than seeing, a shrinking, a scorn, an indignation, a revulsion from a nature that was essentially garish and vulgar.

Beneath a lounging exterior there was swiftness and fire. He had a dignity of his own, a very definite attitude towards life.

Lance might have a temperament, but he was a fighter. There were certain people and properties that he could not abide, cheap people, louts and their loutish English voices, all raw and crude creatures, the sploshed faces he saw in a city, faces that nature did not think it worth her while to finish. In fact, he hated ugliness.

Nearly ten years ago he had seen "Cyrano" played in London. Cyrano was one of his great men.

Meanwhile it occurred to him to wonder what Uncle Conrad wanted with his father at ten o'clock on a September morning. Mr. Conrad must have left Chiois Court directly after breakfast, and he was a late riser.

Mr. Probyn Pybus was writing a letter when he became aware of his nephew standing at the open window.

"Hallo, Conrad."

Probyn was red where his brother was yellow. Tall and ruddy and rather square, he had a smooth geniality and very fine manners which fitted him with some naturalness. His right eye had a slight cast in it. His eyes were of that color that is neither blue nor green nor gray, but a blending of all three. He smiled a great deal. He had what Ula Calmady called "the smile manner"; you might count upon seeing him in mayoral robes and upon his having his portrait painted in those robes. As a matter of fact, his portrait had been painted by Wycherly and had been hung in the Academy.

"Come in, my dear fellow."

Conrad looked out of tempo. He threw his hat into a chair and chose a cigarette from the silver box on his brother's writing desk.

"I've seen the old man."

Probyn put down his pen.

"Our father?"

"Our reverend parent—if you like. He cut me dead."

Probyn looked shocked.

"You don't say so. But where?"

"Castle Craven. He's 'boots' at a local pub. I'd turned in there for a nap with Ula Calmady. Beasty awkward."

Probyn got out of his chair and went and stood with his back to the window. He had a liking for being on his feet when any alarm was sounded.

"By Jove," he said, "by Jove. What a predicament! And he cut you?"

"Dead. That's to say—"

"You spoke?"

"I wanted a word or two. He spat in my face like an old tomcat."

Probyn made a smooth, deprecating gesture with one hand. Conrad still remained so many of his crudities. He was apt to go off the deep end. He had not cultivated a nice, gentlemanly restraint.

"It made me look a fool—caught with a woman like Ula Calmady."

Probyn raised his eyebrows.

"But—you didn't—"

"Is it likely? But how the devil! Well, you see, when I drove up, the chap came out and opened the car door. We just glared."

"Very awkward. But, my dear fellow, it makes me feel conscious of a kind of humiliation. 'Boots.' He's an old man."

"He's still a damned tough one."

"My dear fellow, I think we ought to remember—"

Conrad gave his brother a stare and became explanatory and aggrieved.

Rival Factions Near Clash at D. A. R. Meeting

States' Officers Frown at National Policies.

Washington, D. C., April 18.—(AP)—Evidences of opposition to the national officers and policies of the Daughters of the American Revolution accumulated rapidly at the 37th continental congress today in spite of the repeated protestations of allegiance made in public statements by leaders of many state delegations.

The persistent silence of Mrs. Helen Tutts Ball of Boston as to the intention of her sympathies among the official delegates has stirred increasing conjecture. Mrs. Baile, an outspoken critic of the present regime, is not a delegate but she has been in Washington since the opening meeting.

It is probable that the expected protest against blacklisting of some speakers by certain chapters and the promotion of national policies by the national officers without submission to the membership will be voiced from the floor by the Michigan delegation.

In reply to rumors that the protest would be made by Massachusetts delegates, their state regent, Mrs. James Charles Peabody, answered with this question:

"How could they introduce the blacklist question? I know of none."

"So long as the Russian government is dominated by the communist party," Silas Blake Axtell told the convention today, "and they stick to the Marrian tenets of world revolution together with Lenin's idea of the third internationale, I don't see how we can recognize the present Russian state."

German-Americans Take First Step to Erect Fair Building

First steps toward the construction of buildings for Chicago's world's fair in 1933 have been taken by a group of German-Americans. It became known yesterday when Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson issued a charter to the 1933 world's fair German building committee.

The incorporators will erect an exhibition hall for the German people on the Grant park lake front. The corporation, whose offices are in the Conway building, is composed of Walter H. Brandenburg, member of the board of education; Henry J. Greene, president of the Steuben club; Walter R. Miller, vice president of that club, and Thomas Angerstein, a Chicago lawyer.

"We plan to erect a permanent structure to be preserved after the fair has closed, and turned over to the south park commissioners for their use," Mr. Brandenburg said last night.

"We plan to finance the project partially through the contributions of German-American citizens in Chicago and throughout the United States."

A public meeting of Chicago citizens will be held tonight in the Auditorium theater in behalf of the centennial celebration, August 6, 1933, chairman of the fair committee, George F. Gets, Rabbi Louis Mann, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Bernard J. Mullane, and Stuyvesant Peabody will address the gathering.

Schools Observe Arbor and Bird Day Tomorrow

Arbor and bird day will be observed by pupils in Cook county public schools tomorrow. Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent, in a bulletin to principals and teachers yesterday requested that all county schools be closed at 2:30 in the afternoon for tree planting ceremonies.

The Inquiring Reporter Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question William Gerlich, 714 North Harding avenue, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do the Bremen flyers deserve as much credit as Col. Lindbergh?

The Answers.

Melvin Heininger, 1335 Ardmore avenue, student.—Yes, but their honors were not as great as Col. Lindbergh's because there were three of them. The chances are they will receive greater acclaim when they get back to Germany than they will in this country.

Mrs. R. A. Bailey, 5818 South Park avenue, housewife.—I don't think so. Col. Lindbergh was the first, and he made the trip alone. That called for nerve of the highest order. Col. Lindbergh left here destined for a definite landing field in Paris, and that was where he landed. However, it is more difficult to cross the ocean from east to west than it is from west to east.

R. A. Dunlap, 75 East Wacker drive, artist.—The Bremen flyers deserve fully as much credit, because there are greater hazards in flying across the ocean from the east than there is from the west. The failure of those to cross the Atlantic from the east naturally adds to the honors due the Bremen flyers.

Miss Elizabeth Atkin, 7307 Princeton, student.—I don't think so. Col. Lindbergh was the first to cross the Atlantic, and to the first goes first honors. The Bremen flyers probably would never have thought of taking that trip were it not for Col. Lindbergh's flight. The Bremen flyers deserve credit.

Rudolph Bowman, 4852 Sheridan road, exposition manager.—Goodness no. They wavered all over the map—came very near hitting the north pole. Byrd did a lot of wavering in the air, too. Col. Lindbergh flew in a straight line for Paris, landed, said, "I'm Lindbergh just as though nothing had happened."

Young Students Give Concert in Grownup Style

Enthusiastic Applause for High School Orchestra.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Catch young musicians soon enough, give them the right kind of training and direction, and there is not much of anything that you cannot make them do. The National High School orchestra, composed of members from the high schools of thirty-eight states, played at the Auditorium last night, and their program was something of an eye opener.

They were somewhat more than 300 in number. Two were thirteen years old, one was twenty-two, the others scattering between these limits. One hundred and three, for example, were seventeen. There were ninety-five violins, twenty-eight double basses, twelve harps. If you want to go in for numbers you could keep it up for a column's length. And they were both boys and girls. The only department not invaded by the girls were the seven tubas and the five percussionists, but this was balanced by all the harpists being girls.

These are statistics. The important part was that they played a fully grown up program and played it amazingly well. Frederick Stock conducted the first number, no less a work than Dvorak's "New World" Symphony. Admitting that the woodwinds were at times a trifle weak and that the trumpets showed the brilliancy of band rather than the suavity of orchestral training, the work was fully up to speed, it had pep and elasticity, it was smooth and expressive, its attacks were as exact as clockwork.

From the amount of applause, the performance apparently showed the audience something in the way of youthful musicianship, applause which Mr. Stock continued to divert from himself to the players. Later in the program Howard Hanson appeared to direct a movement from his own "Nordic" Symphony, and Joseph E. Maddy conducted other numbers, including the accompaniment for the Greig piano concerto, played by Frances Hall. There were other surprises to be heard, and these, with regret, were missed, but enough had been heard to show there was something of which America, young and old, could be proud.

The Marshall Field & Co. Choral society gave its annual concert at Orchestra hall under the direction of Edgar Nelson. Part-song filled the first half of the program, together with a solo group by Charles Hackett, the tenor. This was followed by a concert arrangement of some songs from "Faust," with solos by Margaret Maxwell, Irene Pavlovsk, Mr. Hackett, and Mark Love. Chorus and soloists were in fine voice, particularly Mr. Hackett, and enthusiastic applause was distributed over the entire program.

Among other concerts of the evening the Munster trio was heard in a brilliant performance of John Ireland's Fantasy in A minor at Kimball hall. Emma Coyle, young and talented, with a soprano voice of ingratiating quality, gave a song recital at Lyon & Healy hall.

Howard Bartle, Pauline Manchester, and Harold Van Horne will compete in the final piano contest of the Society of American Musicians at Fulton hall tonight.

Indications are that the lease of the Playhouse may be obtained by a responsible and respectable person eager to operate a theater in Michigan Boulevard. The house is under lease to Mrs. Henry B. Harris, of New York; and it has not been in use for the last several months. Mrs. Harris undertook to acquire the theater for her venture before she leased the Studebaker at a rental said to be more than 150 percent higher than that asked for the smaller place.

THEATER

WHEN, early in the Autumn, the Theater Guild revisits Chicago, the theater will be the Studebaker. The Guild's adventure here last year was fiscally felicitous; and there was a high profit in the wanderings of a special cast, carrying the Guild's name and using some of the plays staged in New York by the Guild, through the smaller cities and larger towns. . . . The commercial leanings of the Guild in the past have been toward the Messrs. Shubert; but it seems that Mr. Erlanger has won the affections of the institution, and is gone into an arrangement to "handle" engagements like that in Chicago. The New York Review, a weekly issued since 1909 under the patronage of the Messrs. Shubert, gives special type to explaining to the world that the Guild, so far from being an eleventh-hour undertaking in the interest of Art, is really out for the money, and is a shrewd merchant in its dealings with authors, actors, and theater-owners. This is quite true; and these attributes in the Guild are the principal reason I admire it and help to support it. And I seem to recall having written something in kind in The Tribune in 1924, in 1925, and in 1926, if not in 1927, to the expressed disgust of many readers, who insisted on telling me that I was all wrong.

The Kedzie Theater's management some days since announced that it would, the 29th, put on "No! No, Nanette!" with chorus-girls an' everything, and along comes its west-side rival, the Ambassador, with a bulletin to say that "The Vagabond King" will, the 30th, be performed there.

Information last Thursday from the Goodman Memorial was that "Camille" in Roaring Camp would be revived next week. Information today is that "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be revived Monday, and continued if, as they say in the want-ads, Shakspeare's fantasy will not be performed Wednesday, however; the theater has been taken over for that night by an organization desirous of seeing the "Camille" romp.

That "The Desert Song" would be held in the Great Northern beyond the coming Saturday I expected even at the time the announcement was made that the run would end then. Attendance has not even a week below the plum-line defined in the contract, and has consistently been higher than for "The Student-Prince" or "The Vagabond King." I shall not "Nordic" Symphony, and Joseph E. Maddy conducted other numbers, including the accompaniment for the Greig piano concerto, played by Frances Hall. There were other surprises to be heard, and these, with regret, were missed, but enough had been heard to show there was something of which America, young and old, could be proud.

Chicago Girls 2 of 25 to Make Bows at Court

Powerful Friends Needed to Gain Distinction.

When it was announced in Chicago that two of this city's most popular society girls are to have the distinction of making their bows to the king and queen of England next month at the first of five courts to be held this season, they were counted unusually lucky, and congratulations were coupled with exclamations. And the event acquired still further importance.

When it was announced in Chicago that two of this city's most popular society girls are to have the distinction of making their bows to the king and queen of England next month at the first of five courts to be held this season, they were counted unusually lucky, and congratulations were coupled with exclamations. And the event acquired still further importance.

It is understood that in the case of Miss Dixon, the influence necessary to obtain the approval of Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton, who, according to court etiquette, sponsors all American girls appearing at court, was forthcoming through Everett Saunders, secretary to President Coolidge. A prominent Chicagoan who is a close friend of the Dixon family is thought to have assisted in enlisting Mr. Saunders' interest.

In the case of Miss Borden it is recalled that she does not lack for influential contacts abroad. Her father's sister is Mary Borden Spear of Brig. Gen. Spear, C. B., C. B., E. M. P., and both he and his wife are members of socially select circles in London. Miss Borden and her mother are at present traveling in Italy.

A command to the court of St. James, while it is usually considered only with the evening function of the court itself, involves considerably more in the social whirl.

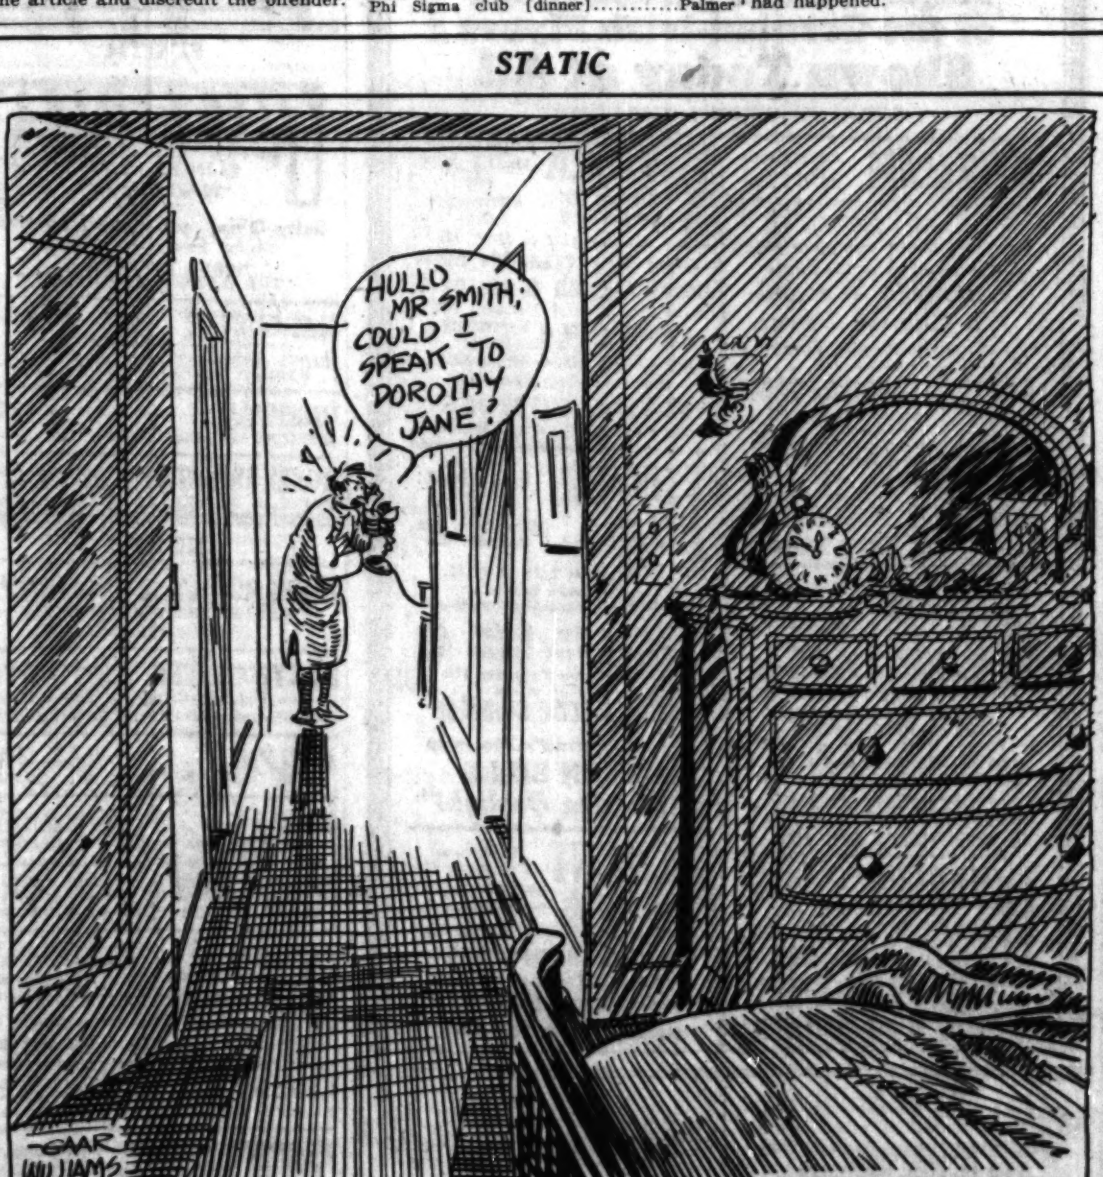

The momentous courtesy itself is generally preceded by a week of intensification of the splendid court costume, of daily rehearsals for the ceremony, and several hours of waiting in a seemingly endless procession of carriages creeping up toward the palace.

Once the court itself has ended, however, come a number of social events at which the newly presented girls are guests of honor, not the least of which is a dinner given at the palace, at which the king and queen are present. Then there are the queen's garden parties, to one of which Miss Dixon was invited last year, and to which she had to send regrets as she was sailing for home.

In many instances the bid to court is asked a year before official sanction is given, which in no way decreases eagerness to get it.

Bit of Attention Asked for Babies in Health Week

For public attention be focused upon the needs of Chicago babies, April 20 to May 5, when the city's annual baby week will be observed in connection with the nationwide observance of Child Health week, was urged yesterday by the Infant Welfare society. The society maintains twenty-three stations in the poorest districts of Chicago, where mothers may receive scientific care during the prenatal period, and where the health of babies from birth to six years of age is supervised.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: A Matter of Business Policy

Gala Evening, Elmer's Verdict; Gives Reasons

Finds Radio Full of the Music He Likes.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

If only those words this morning were instruments that could play and sing!

They would resound joyously over the performance of Dvorak's "New World" symphony by the 100 high school boys' and girls' orchestra at the Auditorium theater, Frederick Stock conducting, KTW, 8 to 9. An evening feast of music and melody, charming details there were over 100 violins, 40 violas, 40 cellos, 20 double basses, 14 each of flutes, oboes, English horns, and clarinets, and "twelve beautiful golden harps in the last row" that the ages ranged from thirteen to twenty years, and that a public address system carried the broadcast to an unprecedented over-the-audience on Congress street.

And how the audience applauded! We haven't heard an applause racket of its kind since the last national presidential convention days.

From WGNR, $20 to $8, a repeat of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," by the American Opera company, Studebaker theater. Good fortune enabled me to attend the afternoon performance of this same opera, where I could learn to my heart's content at the understandable English spoken words, feast the eye on acting that was charming and on scenery that will remain with me until the end of my day. Radio loses something in transmission, especially if the music be such as Mozart's genius lavished on time marvellously lovely opera. Having seen the performance the broadcast made all the more interesting.

From New York, through WMAQ, 9 to 10 hour, the London String quartet. Their program was not as extensive as that through W-G-N last January, but this second hearing further confirms one's admiration for them. They are a marvelous quartet organization, perhaps not excelled by any other. Their tone is rich and deep; there is a remarkable buoyancy peculiar to their style that even keeps Tchaikovsky's Andante Cantabile from dragging, and higher praise of all, they produce a symphonic orchestral effect. Their playing of the age-long and well worn "Londoner Air" was one of the finest of recent radio treats.

The University of Chicago choir gave a brief but fine concert of European early church music, WLS, at 1 o'clock.

In the lighter mood, but thoroughly enjoyable, was the program of waltz music, W-G-N, 730 to 8, and this station's 830 to 930 New York orchestral and mixed quartet program.

FACTION

BY PARKE B.
(Chicago Tribune File)
Springfield, Ill., April 9.—On the eve of the Illinois convention, Louis L. Meade for governor, a group that is deciding the program will be. Signs of slight difference appeared in earlier conversations, and cropped up in the preliminary meeting, but a tendency to the final decision of the head of the state would promise completion before morning.

Thompson Struggle
Nearly all the big names in the state, with the notable exception of Mayor Thompson of Len Small, who is said to be in Kankakee, and Frank Thompson, recent candidate for the senate, were on hand to that United States senator to head the state's delegation at Kansas City, agreed upon today at Emerson and the other states who are his running mates. Carlstrom, Otto F. J. Stinson, Oscar N. Nelson, before the state. When Deane arrived, he was met in, as did his national committee, Chicago, representing Frank O. State Treasurer Garret Shurtleff to P.

In the succeeding movement was reached to Edward D. Shurtleff, five leader, to preside convention, and a decision to at least a part delegates-at-large to the convention. Those decisions, Emerson, Glen Hunter, Nelson, West, and Mrs. Ruth Hams, successful candidate for at-large.

There was more difficulty platform and particularly to the plank on honest election considered of particular importance. Here, it was said, some of those who sided with the willingness to accept a platform against alliances and politics and for the ballot, put in such it could not be construed to insert a Cook county state document.

Lowden Seeks
The Lowden forces candidates are opposed Chicago fight taken to convention floor, where they hung on to a Cook county committee camp with about one delegates in the convention.

But the best information was that Senator Deane his way in this matter the matter of having called on the roll call country towns.
